

RAISING MONEY FOR ALZHEIMER'S

By 2021 a million people will be living with dementia. Argos and the Alzheimer's Society are working together so more people living with dementia can get the support they need by raising awareness and funds for expert Dementia Advisers and we here at Forest Homecare volunteered over the weekend to help to do this by going along and shaking a collection bucket at a local Argos store in Braintree to raise much needed money.

Dementia advisors are so important for anyone affected by dementia, when just finding the right services can feel daunting Dementia advisors can help to find exactly what local support is best for them.

Dementia advisors will:

- listen to your needs and offer tailored information and advice so that you can consider future options.
- link you up with local professionals and services, including everything from social groups to offering help to manage money.
- provide support for you to access the services they refer you to so that you aren't alone.

91% of people affected by dementia say having a Dementia Adviser makes their life better.

Forest Homecare would like to thank all those people who donated on the day, this was a brilliant and exciting opportunity for you to help Alzheimer raise crucial funds and supported the volunteers out there shaking the buckets on such a cold weekend as they raised awareness of dementia in our local community.
